PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Where has another year gone? We are coming up on another annual Meeting of the Maryland Token and Medal Society in June. Time really flies. We are holding our own as an organization but we need to grow a bit. We need some new blood. If any of you know of folks who collect Maryland Exonumia and do not belong to the Maryland Token and Medal Society, please talk to them about joining. We are fortunate to have been blessed with many very active, dedicated and talented members but we are getting "long in the tooth" as they say. I am very pleased that folks keep stepping forward when help is needed. This keeps us solid as an organization. We just heard at our last meeting that our long-serving and outstanding Secretary, Jim Boswell will not serve in that position after his current term expires. We will need a replacement. Please think about stepping in and taking this very important position after Jim's term expires. We need your help once again. Just as Bill Stratemeyer took on the Treasurer job and Wally Stone took on the Journal Editor job, we will need a new Secretary in the near future. Please give it a lot of thought.

The Annual Meeting that I mentioned earlier will be on Saturday 30 June (11AM-1PM) during the Whitman Coin Show at the Baltimore Convention Center. As usual, we will give out our annual literary and membership awards. We should also have a few give-aways for our members too. Hope to see you there and please remember that this is YOUR organization - help out when and where you can.

Another Maryland Encased Cent - Ed Craig LM#22

At a Whitman Coin and Collectibles Expo, I purchased an encased cent from Steve Tannenbaum that was attributed to Baltimore, Maryland on the 2x2. The encased cent is not listed in our new MD TAMS reference done by Mill Hajek. The cent is 1913 with a round aluminum encasement as follows:

Obverse: Cordelia/A New Novel Price $1.00/L.M. Zimmerman, D.D.

Reverse: Keep Me And Never Go Broke

I went to the internet to try to connect this item to Baltimore. When I checked on L.M. Zimmerman, D.D., I found that a Reverend L. M. Zimmerman was indeed a Luthern minister from Baltimore. The D.D. refers to his status as a "Doctor of Divinity". Another reference was the following death/burial notice: "Andrew L. Melton, 59 years old, 14 West Henrietta street, died yesterday at Mercy Hospital. He was employed by the Baltimore Steam Packet Company as watchman at Pier 5, Pratt street. Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Amelia H. Melton. The funeral will be held from the home Monday afternoon, with the Rev. Dr. L.M. Zimmerman, of Christ English Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial will be in Loudon Park Cemetery. (Baltimore Sun, April 2, 1921)."

I also found a second reference concerning the death of a Baltimore can maker and commission merchant: "An obituary from The Sun (Baltimore) stated: THOMAS W. MOORE. Shortly after reaching his place of business Wednesday morning, Thomas W. Moore, 55 years old, 726 North Patterson Park avenue, was stricken with apoplexy and died a few minutes after reaching Mercy Hospital. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock today from the home. Services will be conducted by the Rev. L. M. Zimmerman, of Christ English Lutheran Church. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.... [The Sun, Baltimore, Friday Morning, May 26, 1922, page 4.]

In fact, Leander M. Zimmerman was a Baltimore Luthern minister. There were also several other references to Rev. Zimmerman in Luthern Church historical data from this timeframe. There was however, no mention of or reference to "Cordelia". I did some more research and found out that this same Reverend L. M. Zimmerman from Baltimore was also an author. In fact, he wrote about seven books, one of which was titled: "Cordelia: A Story for the Homemaker and Breadwinner". The following profile of this book for sale was also found on the internet: "Book Description 1914. ZIMMERMAN, L.M. CORDELIA: A STORY FOR THE HOMEMAKER AND THE BREADWINNER. Baltimore, Maryland: Meyer and Thalheimer, [1914]. Small 8vo., blue cloth stamped in gilt. Very Good (bright, bookplate front pastedown with bit of foxing endpapers)." My guess is that he had the encased cent made to commemorate and promote his new book. We now have another encased cent that we can add to our inventory of Maryland Encased.

FOOTNOTE: After writing this article I noticed that in a recent Journal (Whole No. 127) , Jane Sears mentions this very same Rev. Leander M. Zimmerman as he took part in the funeral of George Kahl in 1897. Small world!

World War 1 Exemption Button

By : Paul Belschner R-394

EXEMPT U.S. Lapel Button World War 1, Copper 16mm Manufactured by Whitehead-Hoag.

When the United States declared war on Germany in 1917 the majority of young men volunteered for military service to "Fight The Kaiser". Many were exempt from service because of their employment. These men took verbal abuse from citizens, especially the women who could be very vulgar. Women would approach these men with "My father, brother, husband, boyfriend etc. is serving, why aren't you". It would then get vulgar.

To eliminate verbal abuse this button was manufactured to be worn on a lapel. It was worn by many Maryland men, especially those living in Prince George and Montgomery counties who were employed by the Federal Government in Washington D.C. I'm sure that other state and civilian employees on military posts also wore this.

PLAY-STORE

By Jane Sears
MD TAMS LM12

The play-store panel was a side panel for the Sappo comic strip from the King Features Syndicate Organization. The Panels appeared in the Sunday Comic section from December 8, 1940 thru July 18, 1943. The Sappo comic was the topper panel, which accompanied the Thimble Theatre comic strip. E. C. Segar created these strips in 1925 and on December 19, 1929, when he introduced Popeye to the cartoon. When Segar died in 1938, the strip was taken over by 'Doc' Winner for 1938 and 1939. Bela "Bill" Zaboly and Tom Sim drew the strips from 1938 to 1959. Forrest "Bud" Sagendorf took over the strips in 1959.

The play-store panels were an unique enterprising adventure for children appearing in the early 1940's newspapers. Each comic panel measured about 6 1/2" long and 3 1/2" wide and was in full color. It was created by Bill Zaboly who signed the strip with his BZ. (Illustrated his signature by using his initials BZ with the "B" formed by the wings of a bee).

A PANEL CONSISTED OF:

- 1) At the top of the panels was the Banner section - it stated the name of the panel
PLAY-STORE
- 2) A narrative section, where Popeye was pictured in a setting and telling the children what item he had for them.
- 3) There were comic paper coins that measured a little larger than a nickel. Most panels contained 2 or more coins, sometimes as many as six. The cartoon characters appearing on the coins were Popeye, Olive Oyl, Swee'Pea, J. Wellington Wimpy, Eugene the Jeep, Professor Watasnozzle, Alice the Goon, George W. Geezil, John Sappo, Rough-House, Poop-deck Pappy and others. The denominations were one penny, five cents, one dime, ten cents (YES, this is correct), twenty-five cents, fifty cents, one dollar, three dollars, five dollars, ten dollars, thirty dollars and fifty dollars. The values of the coins were spelled out on each. The children were getting a spelling lesson and they didn't even know it.
- 4) A label of a far out product was illustrated somewhere within the panel.
- 5) Instructions: The kids were encouraged to paste the coins on cardboard and cut them out, collecting enough to use in their cash box. They needed enough to make changed according to Popeye. They were also instructed to paste the label on an empty bottle, jar or box. (even empty egg boxes or pie boxes)

There were price tags and price tickets for the kids. Prices were to be written on the label if necessary or to use the supplied tag to attach it to the product. Some labels had places where Popeye encouraged the kids to price their own product. (In the later years this was done more with the labels).

One panel dated January 1, 1942 ► (at right) issued a Popeye Merchant License. This certified stated that the said person was an official Popeye Merchant authorized to sell Popeye products. This also was to be pasted on cardboard and displayed in their store.

Then on January 11, 1942, a Popeye's Merchant Badge was shown, to be glued to cardboard, cut out and pinned to your apron.

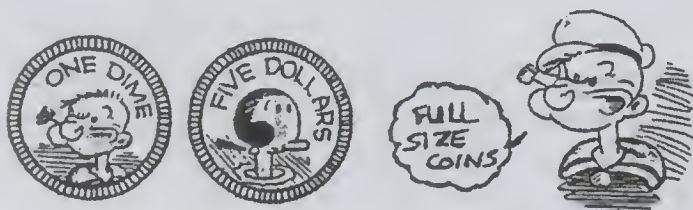

For the period of time that the Play-store was available there were 137 panels.

4 in 1940
52 in 1941
52 in 1942
29 in 1943

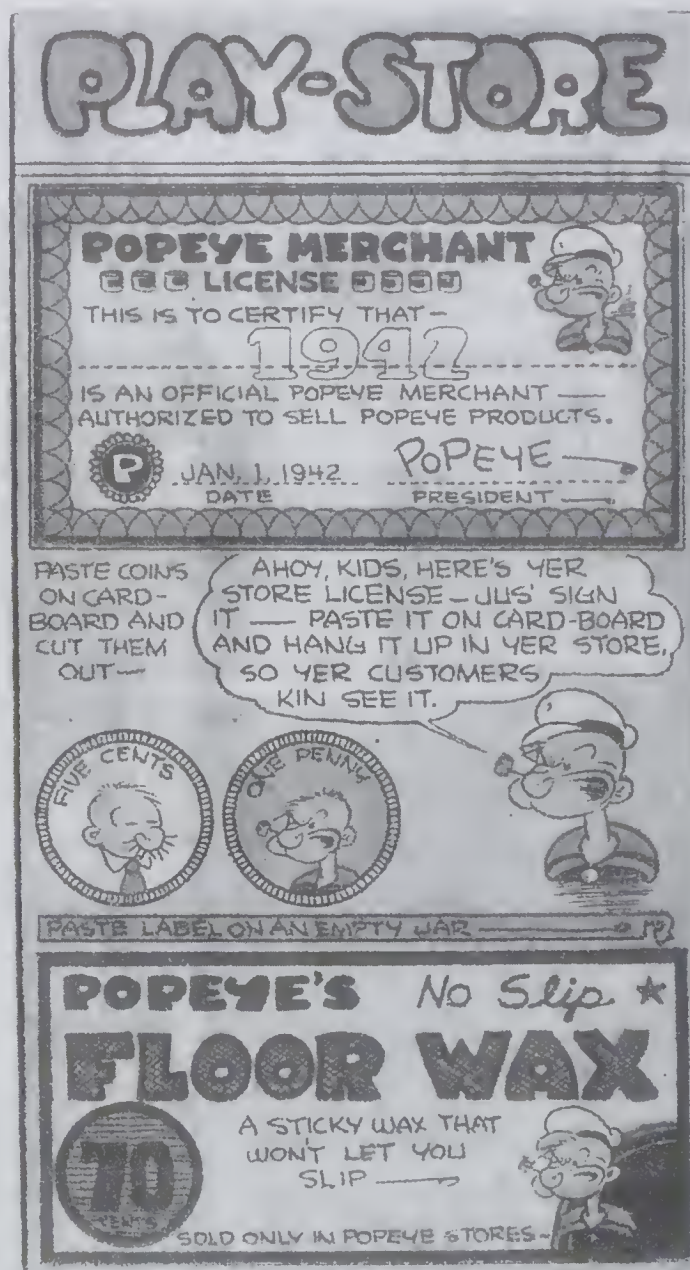

The panels should of been called "POPEYE'S PLAY-STORE" but they were not.

Popeye said to be HONEST when running your store, it is the right thing to do!

This is a cute set of play money to add to your collection. At the present time, I have over 50 in my collection and would love to add more. Of all my play money, this is my favorite. Keep your eyes out for old newspapers.

Coins: a little larger than a nickel (7/8" wide)

Original size panel about 6 1/2' x 3 1/2"

I have cataloged a list of play-store panels from Jack Phillips & my collections, and from the Sunday Color Comic newspapers.

P&BRRR TOOL CHECK

Patapsco and Back Rivers Railroad Company

By; W. Wallace Stone R-47

The Patapsco & Back Rivers Railroad has never enjoyed a high point and scrutiny by the rail fan community and the general public, for a variety of reasons. Its anonymity has much to do with its isolation and inaccessibility. The line ran on the sprawling Sparrows Point peninsula, which has been the site of the Pennsylvania Steel Co. since 1887, and later the Maryland Steel Co., until it was purchased by Bethlehem Steel Corporation in 1916.

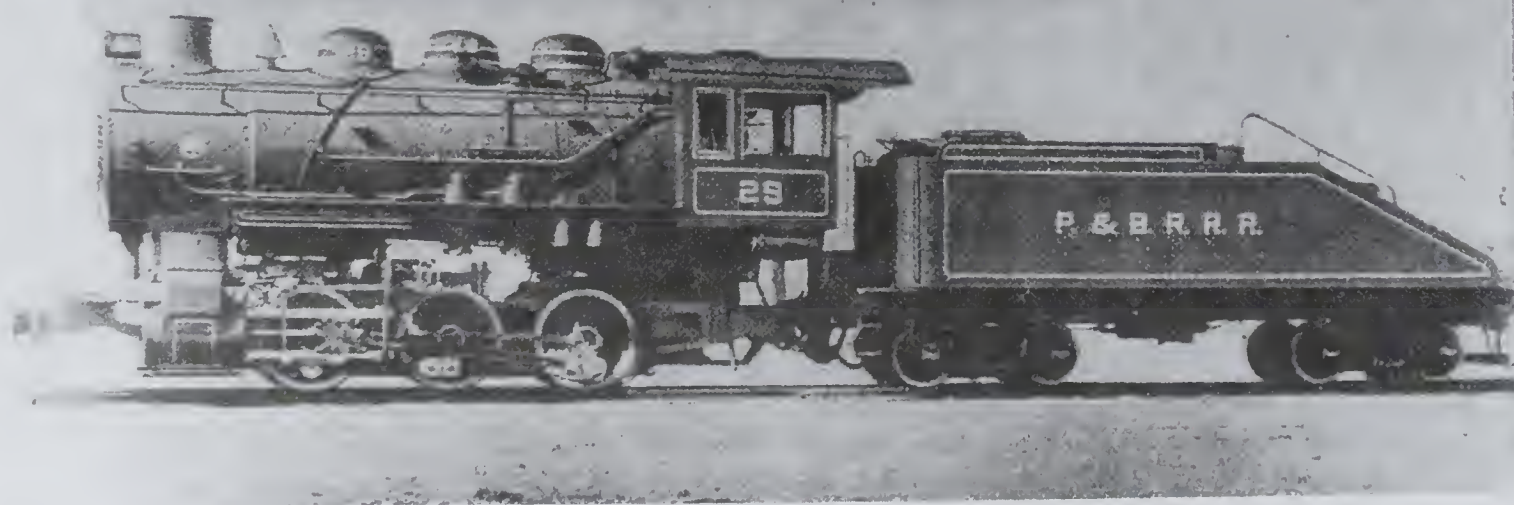

In 1918 the Patapsco & Back Rivers railroad company was formed. Its name derived from the two rivers that border the Sparrows Point peninsula. To the west, is the Patapsco and to the east is the Back River. From the very beginning of the railroad's existence at Sparrows Point all of its locomotives were steam powered. In the 1930's the steam began to be replaced by the newer diesel engines. In 1946 the company built its first engine repair shop on company grounds, this could handle four locomotives at once. During the mid 1950 through the middle 1960's the company was heavily involved in engine rebuilding and sales of these refurbished locomotives. The 1980's brought some major changes to the railroad. As the steel mill began its decline, it impacted directly the railroad. During 1983 the rod, wire, pipe and nail mills were to close. Another big change occurred in 1990, with the introduction of what are called "slab carriers". These giant rubber tired carriers took away a significant percent of the railroads business and had a serious impact on the company workforce. Through the downsizing period meant reduction the company was however awarded the prestigious industry award, that of the H. H. Harriman Award for safety.

When Bethlehem Steel was sold to International Steel Group on April 30, 2003, the Patapsco & Back Rivers Railroad officially was out of business. The railroad, however was not bankrupt. When Bethlehem's assets were sold the railroad emerged under the new name of ISG Railway Inc. Two years later the ISG sold the plant to Mittal Steel Company and the railroad officially became Mittal Steel Railway Inc. In February of 2007 the company was again sold, this time to the Russian company Severstal and the railroad became SSP Holding LLC. With all these changes, the railroad's alphabetical listing code (PBR) which is used by the Association of American Railroads did not change. These codes such as, CSX, NS (Norfolk & Southern) are used for routing and it was much simpler to keep PBR as the alphabetical code. Many changes have happened over the last half century. For example, in 1959 the company had 1,380 employees who worked in 40 to 50 crews working 24 hour shifts. As of 2010 the railroad now has 68 employees, including management. There are 12 crews per day operating a fleet of 16 locomotives, despite these changes over time, the PBR runs on. Hopefully, this Maryland Company will continue into the future.

PBR #335 (SN # 74640), Model DS441000 was built in December, 1949 by Baldwin Locomotive Works

Above – PBR #29 is a Baldwin 060 Class 6-40-D.2 Steam Locomotive (SN# 59,890), shown here in a builder's photograph and in brand new PBR paint.
